2018 Jean Bartel Scholarship for Military Awareness

Miss America 1943 Jean Bartel was known as the "Grand Dame" among her Miss America sisters, and she will forever be remembered for lighting the way for Miss America's scholarship mission. Her spirit of giving was evident to all who crossed her path.

Blessed with a beautiful soprano voice, Jean Bartel had an enormous desire to realize a girlhood dream of appearing on the Broadway stage. When she learned that Horace Schmid Lapp, the financial backer of the hit show Oklahoma!, was going to judge the Miss America Competition, Jean decided to enter. In a whirlwind of events, she became Miss California, and then was off to Atlantic City singing Cole Porter's "Night and Day." This dramatic performance as a gifted soprano helped Jean to be crowned Miss America 1943.

Jean took on the commitment of a "war-time" Miss America to heart, as she embarked on a bond-selling tour that would result in her being honored by the United States Treasury Department as the individual who had sold the most Series E War Bonds that year. Jean raised $2.5 million worth (approximately $34 million in today's dollars), and, surprisingly, most of these twenty-five dollar bonds were sold to women.

It was on this tour at a tea, sponsored by her college sorority sisters, that Jean was inspired to create a college scholarship to be awarded to Miss America. "Opera singers get financial support from sponsors, so why not a college scholarship for Miss America," she is quoted as saying. This idea was discussed with the Board of Directors and was later adopted – in 1945, Bess Myerson of New York would become Miss America's inaugural scholarship recipient. Today, the Miss America Organization is the nation's largest provider of scholarship assistance for women.

A Legacy of Inspiring Others

Millions of Americans have answered the call to serve their country, and Jean Bartel was an ardent supporter of the Armed Forces. Established in Jean's memory, the Jean Bartel Scholarship for Military Awareness is a $3,000 scholarship awarded to a qualified applicant who has demonstrated exemplary service to the men and women of our nation's military.

Applicants are considered based on a variety of criteria, including, but not limited to, grade point average (high school & college/university), class rank, extra-curricular activities, financial aid requirements, household income, level of participation within the MAO system, and an essay describing how the applicant has fulfilled a legitimate need in their community through the creation, development, and/or participation in a community-based project or event to support and raise awareness of the brave men and women who dedicate their lives to protect our freedom.
